

INTERNET TELEPHONY DIRECTLY INITIATED FROM ELECTRONIC MAILS

Abstract

A system and method which integrate e-mail and Internet telephony services into one solution. Are disclosed. Advantageously, an e-mail recipient may initiate a call to the mail sender by clicking on the hyperlinks attached on the e-mail. In brief, the present invention provides an improved IP telephony service which is more user friendly, convenient and efficient as compared to conventional IP telephony services.